Tentative Programme

Day 1 and Day 2:

Theoretical and practical (hands-on)

- Microbiology
- Introduction to Biolog GEN III Microbial Identification System
- Molecular biology (DNA extraction, PCR & Sequencing)
- Bioinformatics

Day 3: Excursion to Tasik Kenyir (Kelah Sanctuary)

Overview

This scientific workshop will provide knowledge, exposure to techniques and hands-on experience in microbiology and molecular biology.

Event details

This workshop will provide an opportunity to learn about and keep up-to-date with the rapidly progressing areas of microbiology and molecular approaches. You can expect a mixture of theoretical and practical (hands-on) aspects of molecular techniques (such as PCR and sequencing & Biolog GEN III Technology) at our Agri-food, Pests and Diseases Management laboratory. It will cover presentations on the areas of environmental microbiology, molecular biology and bioinformatics. Participant will be exposed to Biolog Microbial Identification System which uses the same platform for identification of anaerobic bacteria, yeast and filamentous fungi. The system also enables researchers to study and monitor shifts of microbial population in wastewater treatment, in compost and in soils microbial diversity. The workshop will be held at School of Food Science and Technology, Universiti Malaysia Terengganu (UMT). In addition, we will visit the Kelah Sanctuary, at Kenyir Lake where participants will get the opportunity to feed this freshwater fish while enjoying the natural environment.

Who should attend this workshop

This workshop is intended for postgraduates and researchers in relevant fields. Individuals from other institutions and industries are also accepted and most welcome. It is also open to other Schools and staff members of Universiti Malaysia Terengganu. There are a limited number of places and registration is essential.
